

Andiswa Cele holds the position of Brewing Co-ordinator for Africa for South Africa's largest brewing company.

She obtained her BSc, BSc (Hons) and MSc degrees in Biochemistry and Microbiology. She began her career as a temporary worker in the microbiology laboratory before securing a permanent position as a lab technician and taste coordinator in the analytical chemistry laboratory.

Driven by her passion for brewing, Andiswa completed a rigorous two-year training program to qualify as a brewer. She subsequently held various key roles, including team leader, brewing area manager, technical specialist, and production brewer, gaining extensive experience in different breweries such as Chamdor, Prospecton, and Ibhayi.

Transitioning to the logistics department, Andiswa excelled as the raw materials and scheduling manager before being promoted to brewing manager. Currently serving as a brewing coordinator, she oversees multiple breweries in Africa, ensuring adherence to technical standards across 28 plants while managing key outputs.

"NORMAL IS EXTINCT"

Andiswa's remarkable achievements extend beyond her technical expertise. She has successfully led people development initiatives, spearheaded process and product innovation, and contributed to organizational design and effectiveness. Her contributions have earned her international taste awards, merit awards, and a reputation as an inspiring professional within the industry.

"NORMAL
IS EXTINCT"

